DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1 and 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sanyo Electric (JP 07308183 A) in view of Prows et al.

As per claims 1 and 7-10, Sanyo Electric teaches all aspects of the claims (see Figure 2) except a cover/display panel/operation section that is attached to the incubator body so that an angle to the incubator body is adjustable. Prows et al. teaches the concept of an incubator control panel that is angularly adjustable with regard to the incubator body (see column 2, lines 1-5). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply this basic concept to the incubator of Sanyo Electric for the purpose user convenience or to reduce glare on the read out screen (Prows et al., column 2, lines 4-5), particularly since both references are directed to incubator systems and since the concept of adjustable panels has broad applicability for convenience in controlling a broad array of equipment.

Art Unit: 3744

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 2-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
